For if there is a single point of faith upon which we are not diametrically opposed to our dispified and respectable cotemporary of the Bulletin, we have yet to be informed of it. A glance at its columns yesterday might have satisfied our Lu Monroe street neighbor that no such alliance exists. The Bulletin, with its strong federalold -line - whig - anti - democratic proclivities, takes every occasion to manifest its hostility to Democratic principles, and chuckles with illy concealed delight over the remotest prospect of a split in the party.
